

WENDELL ROWE

Operations & Supply Chain Executive

Wendell Rowe is an operations and supply chain executive whose career is built on one principle: turn complexity into clarity—and clarity into execution.

He has led across advanced manufacturing, enterprise retail, distribution, and supply chain—building disciplined systems, accountable teams, and operations designed to perform at scale. His standard is high expectations, decisive execution, resilience, and results that last because excellence and culture move together.

He serves as Senior Director of Operations at Applied Materials. Previously he was Vice President of Operations & Supply Chain at Safeway, adding national retail and distribution to a career of rising operational scope.

Originally from Virginia and now based in Northern California, his path has been ambition, reinvention, and discipline—and a refusal to let circumstance set the ceiling. Away from the floor he is a husband, father, runner, traveler, and student of performance.

Success is not a title or a destination. It is a life built on purpose: lead well, provide for family, open doors for others, stay true to where you came from, and leave systems, people, and places stronger than you found them.

Self-command is the first victory.

Everything else follows.

BUILD STRENGTH. CREATE SCALE. MAKE DECISIONS THAT ENDURE.

